

Merry Christmas

Merry Christmas from Cane Ridge Baptist Church

Greetings!

A Dad's Past Christmas Thoughts

The presents had been opened; the wrapping paper had been put away. What was left of the glorious Christmas dinner had been transformed to humble leftovers. Worn out children lay in bed dreaming of tomorrow when they will play with their new toys (the ones they hadn't broken yet).

Christmas is over and I alone was sitting down looking at a lonely Christmas tree who knows his days are numbered. I think I saw his limbs droop as he realizes he has fulfilled his purpose and must soon go where all good Christmas trees go. I hope I can be as graceful when my final days come.

Why did I do it? Why did I once again over extend my checking account? Why did I stay up all night Christmas Eve trying to put tab A into slot B? Maybe it's because I love to see the sparkle in my children's eyes. Maybe it's because I understand that one day they will be gone and their eyes will sparkle for another. Maybe it's because I remember how I felt as a boy waking up on Christmas morning. Maybe it's because old Dad talks tough but really has a heart of mush.

There are a hundred "maybes" but here is one certainty. The clock will soon strike midnight on December 25th so have a merry Christmas.
